Hunt Update

MONEY TALKS ARE YOU LISTENING?

Are you looking for some financial education for your children? Or yourself? Check out www.bettermoneyhabits.com, an entertaining site with short videos explaining concepts like budgeting and saving in a way that is simple enough for kids to understand and may even prompt your teen to start saving.

Tax time is a good opportunity to review your financial goals and progress over the past year. A small investment of time and education can pay real dividends!

Take a little time during tax season to evaluate your financial goals and progress.

Maintenance

Depending on where you live, spring has either sprung or is just around the corner. This means visits to the playground. Playgrounds are great places to meet new friends, enjoy the outdoors and to have fun! Below are a few suggestions for an experience which is both enjoyable and safe.

- Keep your eye on children at all times
- Ensure children are using age-appropriate equipment
- Check for damages or missing parts and report any concerns.
- Teach children that roughhousing can be dangerous
- Remove necklaces, scarves or clothing – especially hoodie cords – which may get caught on play equipment

Most playground mishaps can be prevented by active adult supervision. Make your next visit to the playground a walk in the park!
