Hunt Update

July 4 is my favorite holiday. I love the whole thing – grilling, s'mores, parades with fire trucks and decorated bikes, but most of all, the story. A group of men wearing wool, stockings and wigs, closed in a hot, stuffy room in Philadelphia, (have you BEEN to Philly in the summer?) willing to defy the (then) world super-power - England - and birth a new country. Just a bunch of guys with a revolutionary idea and the courage to see it through.

So if you're whistling "Yankee Doodle" on the 4th, sing "Happy Birthday" to America, as well. Have a wonderful holiday.

HOT ITEMS!

The best way to protect your family this holiday is NOT to use fireworks! Attend a public display and leave the fireworks to the professionals. As a reminder, fireworks are not permitted in any of our housing communities.

Think sparklers are a safe option? Think again!

Little arms are too short to hold sparklers a safe distance away from the face and body. Sparklers can heat up to 1200 degrees. How about this? Provide glow sticks for young children. They are fun, last longer than sparklers and don't burn at a temperature hot enough to melt glass.

You've heard it before, but it bears repeating. Stay hydrated, supervise children at all times, don't drink and drive – or boat, or ATV, or swim, or light fireworks. Be careful when grilling. Keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold. Don't add lighter fluid to burning coals. Extinguish completely. Be as safe and healthy on the 5th as you were on the 3rd!
